Mrs. Georgia Thayer, Pleasant St.,

Kidney Pills a short time ago and I can say that they helped me a great deal.
My kidneys troubled me for quite a while and I was so favorably impressed with what I heard about Doan's Kidney Pills that I procured a box. I am well pleased with the results of their use and consequently, have no hesitation in recommending them to other kidney

The Pines of Maine.

Adopted as the Federation Song.
TUNE—WATCH ON THE RHINE.

O pines of Maine, dear pines of Maine,
With my sword breast uplifted high,
Telling thy tales of days long dead

Whose perfume scents the restless air,
Whose voices hush our sleep at night,
Sweet as a softly murmured prayer.

Thou art high born, O pines of Maine!
Thy nature helped to give thee birth,
Thy father was the sea and wind.

Thou art high born, O pines of Maine!
Thy nature helped to give thee birth,
Thy father was the sea and wind.

A 100 Year Old Liniment

Readers of this paper will be interested to know that Johnson's Anodyne Liniment, the old stand-by in so many thousand New England homes, is just now rounding out the one hundredth year of its existence.

But few people where this paper circulates can recall a time or place where Johnson's Anodyne Liniment was not a venerated household remedy.

Children from early infancy knew the size and shape of the bottle and what the liniment "was good for" with their parents and their grandparents. To all children, parents and grandparents, it has been used time out of mind.

There is a significant meaning in this. One hundred years is a long time. It is an especially long time for a liniment to continue a favorite remedy in the same section of country. There are hundreds of household remedies, hundreds of liniments. But they come and they go. Most of them are of short duration. They are used for a few years, and then are heard of no more.

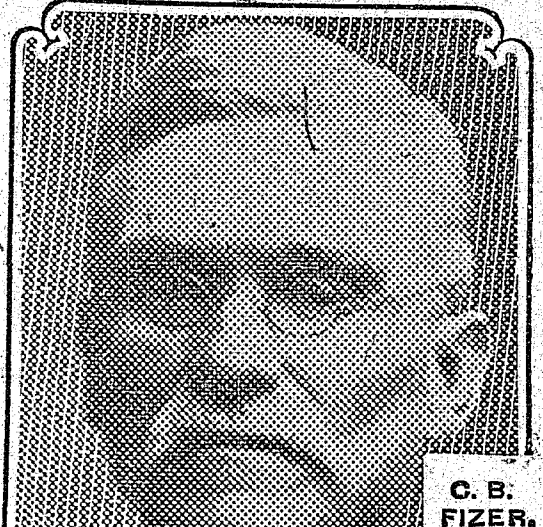

Of how many household remedies can it be said, as it is said of Johnson's Anodyne Liniment, that they have been used generation after generation for a hundred years?

Johnson's Liniment has endured for a hundred years because it is a great liniment. It is good because it has done good. Nothing but its efficacy could have kept it alive so long. If the original compound could now look back for a century and see the ailments it has cured, what a long line would greet his eye! What a world of aches and pains! Of sores, cuts, bruises, swellings, sprains, and lamenesses! Of rheumatism, sore throat, colds, stomach and bowel troubles.

No one can imagine, much less estimate, the good which this old, reliable liniment has done for hundreds of thousands, young and old, during these one hundred years.

A Story Concerning Gen. W. K. Kimball.

The disappearance of Stanley Jackson from the jail some few weeks ago caused the following story to be told as Jackson had given the officers at the jail, also at Rumford, considerable trouble.

Many years ago when the court building was on Paris Hill, one Packard was before the court because of some minor offense, and had no lawyer to defend him. The court assigned Gen. Wm. K. Kimball to defend him. The General demurred, and said that he didn't want to have anything to do with the matter, but the Judge insisted that he act as attorney for the defendant, and finally Gen. Kimball consented, saying that he wanted to take the defendant into the law library to see what his defense would be. The Judge allowed him to do so, and they went into the library. Meanwhile the work of the court continued and another case taken up.

When they had entered the library, Gen. Kimball turned to the client and said, "Stevie, are you innocent or guilty?"

"Guilty as —," he replied.

The general, pointing out of the window to a piece of woods that lay across the river to the west, said in a stern tone, "Lose no time, Stevie, in getting into those woods."

Whereupon Packard bolted down the stairs as fast as his speed would permit, out around the court house, down the hill, across the river and into the woods, and Kimball, after seeing that he was safe from pursuit from the window of the law library, went back into the court room and sat down.

After the conclusion of the case which they had been trying the Judge turned to the General and said, "Gen. Kimball, now we'll take up your client's case."

Looking around the room and seeing that he was not there, said, "Where is he?"

Kimball rose moderately and turning to the Judge, replied, "My client has left his country for his country's good."

The Court could not repress a smile, and the Judge turned to the Clerk, saying, "Default his bail."

In conclusion, this man was gone for some time, but, after a number of years, wishing to return, the defendant returned, and settling the matter up with the County Attorney, paid a small fine and was discharged.

Inquisitive Coon.

The Manchester, N. H., Mirror and American says:—Linwood Flint of North Waterford, Me., walking up Elm street at 1 o'clock this afternoon received as much attention as "Our Teddy" on his recent visit here. The reason that Mr. Flint was the cynosure of all eyes was not so much on his own account, as because he was trailing a fat raccoon on a chain in the same manner as he would a brindle pup.

The coon is six months old and plump. He weighs 15 pounds and waddles along the sidewalk. With the curiosity of wild folk in civilization, he investigates everything new to him and he even attempted to enter the Manchester National bank. The cashier and bookkeeper were so desirous of a sign of the little fellow that Mr. Flint took him up in arms and brought him in. The coon was not at home in his surroundings, he peered at everyone with his bright little eyes and wanted to be put down.

When they were outside he ran from side to side smelling everything that was new to him. He will know Elm street thoroughly when next he walks on it.

His owner said the coon was captured in Oxford county, Maine, when a few weeks old. He is fed with the same edibles that would satisfy the wants of a dog or cat. Far from being savage, "Cooney" likes to play with boys and girls and goes romping around Mechanics hall inviting them to join him in play whenever he catches sight of one. He will not bite or scratch.

Mr. Flint is a dealer in wild animals. He has tamed porcupines, bears and many other wild folk. This week he is showing what wild animals can do with training at Mechanics hall.

The only thing that worries "Cooney" is the dogs. On these occasions and when "Cooney" gets footsore, his owner merely picks him up and carries him until out of danger or rested. The coon has had many articles written about him in state papers. Last week his owner brought him into several Dover department stores, where "Cooney" got more kisses than Hobson.

An Old Norway Newspaper.

Captain W. W. Whitmarsh shows us an Oxford Observer published in Norway, Tuesday, March 27, 1892. This copy is No. 41, Vol. 3 of the Observer. It says: "Published weekly by William R. Green; the charge $2.00 per annum, or $1.75 in advance." It is a four page, five column paper. The first page, five columns, is taken up by a speech by Henry Clay in the Senate of the United States "In Defense of the American System," and this was continued from some former papers and at the end of the fifth column it says, "To be continued."

Four columns are devoted to the "Politics of the Maine Legislature" and the "National Republican Convention," then the "Northwestern Boundary Question" is discussed in four columns.

There is a stirring article from the Liberator on "Slavery," another from the United States Sentinel on the "Makeup of the United States," and remarks that have been made in the Senate on the subject expressed by Mr. Ludden, a Jackson member from Oxford county, on an "Honest Man." This doesn't leave much room for local matters and advertising.

Jerome Mitchell evidently runs a general store in the village for he advertises for Sale almost everything under the sun.

Joseph C. Green at the Falls has established himself as an iron machinist. He builds all kinds of cotton and woolen machinery, does all kinds of iron work repairs and makes surgeon's instruments, repairs guns, and does wood carding machines at short notice.

There is a Collector's notice of "Non-resident Taxes in the Town of Albany for the Year 1891." Harmon Towne was the collector for that year.

H. W. Millett, deputy sheriff of Norway, advertises a "Sheriff's Sale."

The Ariel, a literary journal, has nearly a column of advertising, and subscriptions for which were received at the Observer Office.

A. Tell & Brother of New York City have moved their Stereotype Foundry to a new location in that city. They take about 1/4 column space in the paper.

One column tells how "Health is Secured by the Use of the Hygienic Vegetable Universal Medicine of the British College of Health, London. This cures about every disease that flesh is heir to, and is for sale by Asa Barton of Norway, the authorized agent for the County, and every box sold by him was warranted to be "Direct from London."

W. B. Norton has for sale at his store in Oxford, 40 bushels of Tea Wheat, the seed of which was imported from the British Provinces, in the year 1830, price $1.50. He also had 4 hds. prime retail molasses.

There is a Collector's notice of the town of Hiram, Peleg Wadsworth, collector.

Mrs. H. W. Goodnow, the village milliner, has on hand and for sale, a good assortment of bonnets, calashes, turbans, and various styles of hats for the present and approaching season; also hand boxes.

Asa Barton has a notice to rheumatic invalids about Jebb's Rheumatic Liniment, Dumfries' Remedy for the Piles and Itho Ointment.

The American Farmer, a weekly newspaper, published by Gideon D. Smith, publisher of West Parsonage, by Irving Hatch at $5.00 per annum, is advertised. Evidently the farmers got their farm literature at a distance in those days.

There is a poem from the Boston Sentinel by a Philadelphian, occasioned by the Adoption of the Federal Constitution in 1787. The first stanza says:

"The Venture died in Boston meet,
But the State House could not hold 'em;
So they went to Federal street,
And there the treaty was made."

"Yankee Doodle, keep it up,
Yankee Doodle Dandy;
March on, march on, boys,
And with the girls be handy."

There are 13 stanzas besides the choruses.

There is this marriage "In town the 19th inst. by Rev. B. D. Murray, Mr. Henry C. Reed to Miss Martha Millett."

There was a wedding in a different part of the State, those in Oxford county: "In the town, 20th inst., of cancer, Harriet Eliza, aged 7, on the 23d, Harriet Eliza, aged 5, daughters of Mr. Charles Cleaves, in Oxford, a child of Mrs. Margaret Lombard; Mr. Jonathan Bryant aged 26, son of Paris, aged 22 years, Mrs. Ruth, wife of Mr. Morton Brett, in Waterford, William, son of Mr. John Haskell, aged 10; Olin, son of Mr. Thomas Proctor, 5; Charlotte, daughter of Mr. Gabriel Kilgore, 6; Hannah, daughter of Mr. Charles Noyes, 6; Maryetta, daughter of Polydore Hamilton, 6; infant child of Mr. Chas. Billings."

"Hang out your banner on the outer wall, 'For President, Henry Clay; For Vice President, John Sargent.'"

William E. Goodnow, the editor of this paper, advertises and begs for sale, a new and complete set of the Encyclopedia of Universal Knowledge. He has a prospectus of a paper to be published weekly in Norway, Me., to be entitled "A Journal of the Times." He describes this paper as follows: "Knowing all the desire of the people of this country for a paper that shall be free from party politics and their wish to have one that shall be useful in every other respect, it is proposed to publish one with the above title, provided a sufficient number of subscribers can be obtained to warrant the undertaking."

"In conducting a paper of this character it will be our endeavor to avoid the evil spirit of all parties rather than advocate any one thing in particular. We will rather be the bear of the olive branch than the lion of the moment." He continued in this way for some length. The price was to be $1.00 per annum if paid within three months; $1.25 if paid within six months from the date of the publication; and $1.50 if paid at once. Subscribers were to be appointed in every town of the County, "to whom all subscribers to the paper can make payments with cash and country produce." At the close of the advertisement there was a list drawing attention to the writers in this State by inserting the above. While the favor reciprocated at any time.

As we have never heard of the "Journal of the Times" we do not know whether it was ever published or not. Perhaps some of our older residents can tell us.

The local masters consisted of the following item: "A new Post Office, established in the eastern part of Sumner, called East Sumner Post Office, and Dr. Bethuel Cary is appointed P. M."

B. Walker McKee, Lecturer of the State Grange, has arrived from Washington, D. C. He has been in attendance at a national meeting of Institute of Washington who is to speak at Farmers' Institutes for several days in the State.

Andrew Willard Burnham.

Intelligence is received of the death, on Nov. 15, of Andrew Willard Burnham in Royalston, Mass. Mr. Burnham was a native of Lubeck, and was from his early years noted for his fine mechanical skill and was for years before the Civil war, foreman of the woodworking department of the elevated carriage and sleigh manufactory of C. F. Kimball in Portland.

In the early seventies he moved to California, and in Oakland, carried on a prosperous business in the manufacture of velocipedes, before the advent of its successor, the bicycle. Returning to Maine in the eighties, he settled at Biddeford's Mills and engaged in the principally sleigh making. Later, he removed to Boston, and was for years foreman of the Samuel Sargent carriage and coupe factory on Seabury street, residing in Chelsea, Somerville and Cambridge.

Mr. Burnham was in his 72d year. For nearly two years past he has been a helpless invalid in consequence of a paralytic shock, and has been living with and cared for by his son-in-law, Rev. J. C. Fogg and wife, Nellie Burnham, who are in West Parsonage, where Mr. Fogg was a pastor.

Mr. Burnham was a man of strict integrity of character, and was of most amiable disposition. A few years since, he embraced a religious life and was esteemed for his Christian example and conscientiousness.

He is survived by his widow, who was Harriet Chase of Bolster's Mills, two sons, Walter Burnham of base ball and polo fame, Mrs. Nellie Fogg, already mentioned, and Chester S. Burnham; one daughter, Mrs. George H. Jeffers of Yarmouth, and several grandchildren. Interment was at Somerville.

Mrs. Mary Gray, son and wife of Bridgeton are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Freeman Haggard. Mrs. Gray is a sister of Mrs. Haggard.

The leading sensation of the week is the story of a recent burglary of the Grange store and stealing of a few goods. The deed was committed by two boys, living at a distance from the village, who have been detected and the goods recovered.

Comrade William M. Nevers, well known in Norway and elsewhere as Marshall Nevers, is living at the age of 85, with the family of Bion Pike, whose wife is Edith, daughter of the comrade. He is in feeble health, owing to a chronic disease of the kidneys. He is one of the surviving members of Company B, 23d Maine Infantry, Col. Wm. Virgil.

At the last meeting of Bear Mountain Grange, Brother Leslie McIntire, special committee on the matter of having the route of automobile travel changed from the east side to the west side of Bear Mountain, reported that information from a lawyer that the proper course of procedure would be to call a town meeting and have the citizens vote upon the question; then to petition the legislature to pass a law with penalty attached, prohibiting the passing of automobiles on the east side of the mountain.

Extensive McIntire announced the following program:

Music, graphophone.....Brother Allen
Recitation.....Brother Heath
Reading, Value of the graphophone.....Brother Reading
Humorous dialect recitation.....Brother Sias

He was very bashful and she tried to make it easy for him. They were driving along the seashore and she became silent for a time. "What's the matter?" he asked. "O, I feel blue," she replied. "Nobody loves me and my hands are cold." "You should not say that," was his word of consolation. "For God loves you, and your mother loves you, and you can sit on your hands." (Success.)

Almost Beyond Belief.

Marvelous Success in Curing the Sick. Exhausted Nerves Take On New Life and Rheumatism is But a Toy in Their Hands.

Consultation is continued free and prices for a cure are extremely low to all who desire treatment, but no one will take offense if their case is declined, as under no circumstances will a case be undertaken which, in their opinion, cannot be cured.

They Cure Their Patients to Stay Cured.

Read what their patients say: "After taking different treatments and trying different physicians and visiting various climates for my Rheumatism from which I had suffered for sixteen years, until I was thoroughly discouraged about ever being cured of this painful malady; but after hearing so much about the wonderful cures wrought by the Caldwell system of treatment in Bangor, I decided, as a last resort, to try their treatment and as a result, in a month's time, the pain subsided and after four months, I was entirely cured. This was three years ago and I have had no return of it since. I know from experience that these specialists understand the science of healing thoroughly and have become widely known through their cures. I also know, personally, many people who have been cured by them." Mrs. M. J. Webber, 86 Court St., Auburn, Me. Nov. 19, 1910.

Maine Corn Factories.

Students of agricultural problems in Maine agree that the marketing of farm products is fully as important as good seed, knowledge of soil and raising, in farm methods. Canning factories offer ready market for such commodities as they preserve and there is a demand for more of them.

Maine already stands third among the states of the union in value of the corn packed, being exceeded only by New York and Illinois," says an article in the Directory of the Manufacturing Industries of Maine, recently issued by the Bureau of Industrial and Labor Statistics.

"An investigation of this industry made by this department in 1900, showed 68 corn canning establishments then in operation, with a total pack of 22,100,000 cans valued at $1,519,374.45. Returns made to this department the present year show that 95 factories were in operation during the packing season.

"Ten years ago the farmers were receiving $1.50 per 100 pounds of corn as cut from the cob. The price was later raised to $2.00 and the present year contracts have been made at the rate of $2.25 per 100 pounds.

"Fully 90 per cent of our corn pack is put up in the seven counties of Androscoggin, Cumberland, Franklin, Kennebec, Oxford, Penobscot and Somerset, while a few factories are located in Knox, Piscataquis, Waldo and York. No corn canning factories are reported from the counties of Arrostook, Hancock, Lincoln or Washington.

"About one-half the number of factories put up fruit and vegetables in addition to corn, while half a dozen others which we have included in the list omit corn altogether in their pack.

Experiments, with a view of preserving sweet corn in hermetically sealed cans, were commenced near Portland, Maine, about 1840, and in 1842 a piece of corn was planted for experimental purposes. At first the whole ears were cooked and the corn sealed up on the cob, but this proved too bulky, and a fork was devised by which the corn was torn from the cob. Later a knife was used by hand to cut the corn.

"From these crude beginnings, one improvement after another has been made until now the work, after the corn comes from the huskers, is nearly all done by machinery, and to such perfection has this been brought that some of the machines seem almost to possess human intelligence.

"This industry gives employment to about 7,000 hands for a brief period, lasting generally from four to six weeks. Nearly one-third are females.

"In 1899, a little over 11,000 acres were planted with sweet corn in the State, and the increased number of canneries would indicate a material increase in the acreage. Many farmers make this a leading crop and prefer it to any other line.

"We here present a list of factories in this part of the State:

"Burnham and Morrill Company—Factories at Auburn, Minot, Bridgton, Harrison, Portland, Farmington, Strong, Bangor, Dixfield, South Paris, West Paris, Norridgewood.

Nature makes the cures after all.

Now and then she gets into a tight place and needs helping out.

Things get started in the wrong direction.

Something is needed to check disease and start the system in the right direction toward health.

Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with hypophosphites can do just this.

It strengthens the nerves, feeds famished tissues, and makes rich blood.
